British, German Forces in First Fight At Namsos

Nazi Troops Rushed North From Trondheim To Meet British Landing Parties—Enemy Attack Is Repulsed

LONDON, April 19.—A Reuter's News Agency dispatch from Osterund, Sweden, today quoted a reliable Norwegian source at Nordli, 16 miles west of the Swedish frontier, as saying that Norwegian forces have established a line from Namsos eastward to the frontier to stem the advance of German soldiers. The Germans were believed to have been landed by parachute. The same source reported that both Namsos and Bodø are in Norwegian hands, and said that Norwegian and British troops are co-operating actively southward from Namsos.

LONDON, April 19.—Allied manoeuvres, including the first reported engagement of British and German land forces in Norway, pointed today toward a head-on clash of battlefronts on the Scandinavian battleground.

INDEPENDENTS TO MEET HERE ON SATURDAY

Possibility That Liberals Will Re-Enter Provincial Field

Advantage of appointing a house leader, discussion of party policy and provincial legislative plans are questions which will be discussed at a meeting of Independent members-elect of the Alberta legislature scheduled for Saturday morning at the Edmonton hotel.

Seating will start at 9:30 a.m. and a understanding that the 19 independent members-elect will be in the chamber. Angus Macdonald, Calgary, elected as a Labor candidate in Edmonton constituency, has stated he will not attend.

The meeting will be presided over by Dr. Peter M. Campbell, Lethbridge, from Unity constituency, to be elected to the Alberta legislature in representation to the provincial government. He was the successful Unity candidate in Lethbridge in the 1937 by-election and was re-elected as a "Unity-Independent" in the recent general election.

MAIN ISSUE

Chief question before the meeting will be the selection of house leader. Considerable speculation as to the chances of the Independent party being current in political circles for several days with Dr. M. Campbell, Lethbridge, Mayor Andy Davidson, Calgary, and Alfred Sampson, Red Deer, as leading candidates.

It is understood, however, that many supporters of the party favor the selection of a rural member who has not been actively engaged previously with any political party.

There is the distinct possibility that the meeting of the Alberta Liberal Association decision will be made in re-entry the provincial political field.

The political strength of the different parties as disclosed in the federal election under their party labels would indicate that the province is predominantly Liberal. The result of the election is as follows:

Liberal	..... 100,251
Conservative	..... 10,251
Conservative	..... 2,783
Conservative	..... 4,000
Conservative	..... 2,000

The Unity Constituency headquarters in Calgary points out that a vast amount of organization has been accomplished in Alberta in a very short time and that the party has adopted the new party, under what name, name change, could be handled without delay.

H.M.S. Eclipse Is Damaged By Nazi Air Bomb

LONDON, April 19.—The H.M.S. Eclipse, a 1,000-ton destroyer, fell in a German bombing attack was destroyed today with the announcement the vessel had reached her base.

The Admiralty said the following communication:

"As a result of a near miss during an enemy bombing attack some days ago, H.M.S. Eclipse was damaged, but she is now at her base."

Farm Machinery

REGINA, April 19.—A heavy increase in sales of farm machinery in spring is anticipated by local manufacturers and farm implement companies.

Escape Nazis

Mrs. Jon Bjornson, of 19-month-old daughter Mette, as they arrived in New York after the inter-Bergenford, which sailed from Bergen two days before the Nazi blitzkrieg struck Norway.

It was "protective help" against a phantom Allied plot to intervene which the Germans gave as a pretext for the Nazi invasion of Norway last week.

The premier appeared in the Dutch nation to keep calm and to maintain confidence despite anxieties that the war spread to the low countries. He said that "there are, in these times, it must be our first duty to safeguard our neutrality."

"We have received assurances from the belligerents that they would safeguard this neutrality of ours," he continued. "We trust that this assurance can be relied upon."

"But in any case we wish to make it perfectly clear that we ourselves are perfectly able, as well as equipped, to protect our neutrality."

"I wish to take this opportunity to point out that Holland, at any rate, is not asking for, and is unwilling to accept, the aid or assistance of any third power to maintain its neutrality."

Holland Will Resist With Weapons Any Attempt To Extend "Protective Help"

Prime Minister De Geer Appeals To People To Keep Calm As Martial Law Announced For Entire Nation

THE HAGUE, April 19.—Prime Minister Derek Jan De Geer declared in a broadcast today that the Netherlands will resist with arms any attempt by a foreign power to extend "protective help" to the lowland country and announced martial law for all of Holland.

"It was 'protective help' against a phantom Allied plot to intervene which the Germans gave as a pretext for the Nazi invasion of Norway last week."

NORSE ARMY STIFFENED RESISTANCE

Allies And Norwegians Establish Contact For Collaboration

By THOMAS H. HAWKINS
 Associated Press Staff Writer
 STOCKHOLM, April 19.—Norway's Allied aid stiffened her resistance to the German onslaught today as fighting the length of her tortuous west coast foreshadowed a major engagement in the Trondheim area and a determined stand in land north of Oslo.

Steady accounts by Norwegian government sources and Swedish newspaper dispatches indicated the Germans still were increasing the extent of their hold on southern Norway, but the arrival of Allied troops had established contact with some promising active collaboration against the Nazi invaders.

Trondheim, at the mouth of the great fjord reported to have surrendered the day after the news it had fallen and a determined stand in land north of Oslo.

Bulletin Correspondent

 best known and most influential woman writer of the world of today, one of a few weeks visit in France, England, Italy, Turkey, Holland, Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries, is joining the staff of The Bulletin's overseas correspondents.

The noted woman columnist will describe the lives of non-combatants in the war countries and the neutral countries close to the war atmosphere.

"She will stay away from diplomats and military leaders and give true pictures of the conditions of the ordinary folk at home. No one could be better fitted for this task than Dorothy Thompson. When she writes on a subject she has studied it with a mind unclouded by prejudice and leads one to a conclusion one must respect for the brilliant work of Sinclair Lewis, noted novelist."

The first article appears today under the regular column heading, "On The Record." Already her writings have drawn down on her head the wrath of the dictators, but undimmed the war has only made the story at the first hand, vivid, profitable and compelling information. (See Page 15 of today's Bulletin for "On The Record.")

BEAR CREEK FLOODS PART NORTH TOWN

Grande Prairie Citizens
Take Boats

Flames to Edmonton Bulletin
GRANDE PRAIRIE, April 18.—Bear Creek yesterday became a raging torrent which rose 10 feet in a few hours, overflowed its banks and made a huge lake of the low lying western end of town. By early afternoon residents of that area were forced to flee to higher ground.

Superstructure of the big railway bridge was threatened as water, diverted to a single channel under it, burst its new bounds and formed a swiftly flowing river.

The creek had been rising threateningly for several days, but following a night rain and a strong west wind, water poured into it from all directions. The main highway west was a sheet of running water for five miles by train and Bear Creek was on the rampage.

The sudden rising caught residents unawares. Wood piles were suddenly thrown into the water, a road cut with a rope around its horns, moored plaintively from a suddenly formed island. R.C.M.P. rode out to give warning of the flood. Bear Lake, 12 miles west, spread its waters for miles around and farmers had to take to boats.

Just last night about 1000 ft. of water, while the ice is not yet out of Bear Lake, it is believed the worst of the flood.

Not since the flood of 1935 has Bear Creek seen such high water.

The coffee, can't get it these days because of the British blockade. He also apparently has to drink ersatz tea.

A sample of the tea reached London and the Daily Mail wrote: "The ersatz tea is not so good as the other but it is better than nothing." It looked like green dust mixed with small pieces of straw, the reporter who conducted the experiment added.

"The packet—rather like a garden seed packet—bore a picture of a benevolent Frenchman with a beard and a green coat. On the back was written in German: 'The coffee is made from the best coffee beans in the world.'"

"The packet is suitable for permanent household use and is quite appropriate as a complete substitute for all other beverages."

"We've tried it with milk and with sugar, without sugar and, oh, well, we tried it every way and we've decided which was the least unpleasant."

"Here are some opinions: 'Coffee is a drinker's snob average ten cups a day? I don't think I had to drink that stuff!'

"Fellow reporter: 'I taste rather like hot water, but I don't know if I had to drink that stuff!'

"'What a horrible article!'

FIRM ACTION URGED AGAINST FIFTH COLUMN

Purge Of All Subversive
Groups Is Asked Of
U.S. Government

LONDON, April 18.—The Daily Mail reported today that 70 members of the House of Commons have asked the ministry of home security, Sir John Anderson, to take firm action against "fifth column" elements in the country.

The newspaper said it was fully supported by public opinion in demanding action against such factions.

Use of the term "fifth column" to describe subversive, traitorous elements in a nation, now being widely applied following reports of traitors and spies in Norway who paved the way for Germany's invasion, originated during the Spanish civil war.

When the Franco insurrection developed into internecine warfare in Spain, bands of Rightists remained in Loyalist centres, hiding their subversive activities until Madrid's defenses could be broken and the way for the Nationalists.

Four rebel columns converged on Madrid, Loyalist capital which was held by armed assault. A Republican leader during 1936 pointed out that Madrid's defenses could be broken and the way for the Nationalists.

The term "fifth column" was given wide currency later by a play dealing with the work of the Loyalists in maintaining the attitude of "fifth column" written by the newspaperman-activist, Ernest Hemingway, and now playing in New York.

"Like the name 'Quelling'—the Norwegian major who set up the puppet government at Oslo while the Times of London being headed for the dictionary, is synonymous with treachery. 'Fifth column' seems destined to remain in the language as descriptive of any group which, instead of fighting for freedom, resorts to the tactics of 'boring from within'."

CROMWELL IS CANDIDATE TO U. S. SENATE

Minister To Canada Allies
Self With Views Of Roosevelt

SOMERVILLE, N.J., April 18.—James H. R. Cromwell, United States minister to Canada, today formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for U.S. senator from New Jersey.

Cromwell was in Canada as the statement of candidacy was made from his home here through State Senator James J. Bowers.

Identifying himself as "what is generally referred to as a 'Liberal'," Cromwell, 43, an economist, former business executive, civil service promoter and the husband of Dr. Duke, the richest girl in the world, allied himself with the President with this statement:

"Recent years have witnessed great upheavals and radical changes in governments throughout the world. President Roosevelt has demonstrated that our form of government is adequate to meet changing economic, social and world conditions and that our representative constitutional democracy will survive."

"I stand with him in his ceaseless endeavor to find through our great democratic process security and a better life for the great masses of our people, I stand with him in his sound and successful policy of keeping America at peace by facing facts as they are and by pretending we live in a world apart."

"Turning to national issues, he said: 'Our country needs time to assimilate and adjust itself to the progressive social measures of present years. If we can solve our unemployment problem, many of our other problems will solve themselves.'"

Edmonton Tries It Out

The city council decided on Tuesday to install the much-discussed water-soaking plant. It was justified in doing so, because while the project met with a wide measure of approval there was little outright opposition shown to it. At most, those who were not in favor appeared to be doubtful if the service would be worth the cost, rather than convinced it would not be.

Due time the householder will know whether soft water is worth the increase in water rates required to pay for the plant. And, it may be surmised, the councils and residents of other western cities will be watching Edmonton's experiment with the idea of putting in a similar plant. The investment is pretty worth while. "Hard" water is the variety common to those cities which draw their supply from streams flowing eastward from the Rockies. If Edmonton people find softening to be satisfactory at the cost, no doubt the other prairie centres will follow the lead.

Danish People in Canada

The town council and people of Edson did what might be expected in refusing to accept the resignation of Mayor Wilson because it is his good fortune to have been born in Denmark. For the time his native land has become enemy territory, and it was a tactical action on the part of the Mayor to offer to vacate the post on that account. It was highly commendable on the part of his fellow-councillors and townsmen to refuse to permit him to do so.

Denmark was not occupied by the enemy with its own consent, but because it had not the means to resist. To have attempted resistance would have not changed the outcome, and could only have resulted in useless slaughter. Danish people residing in Canada will suffer no loss of esteem because of the misfortune that has come to their kinsmen and restored to full sovereignty. It is unthinkable that Danes living anywhere in Canada would be prejudiced or allowed to feel themselves under any sort of reflection because the country of their birth has become a victim of aggression by Canada's enemy.

Danish loyalty to democratic ideals is under no shadow of doubt.

No Grabbing

Mr. Cordell Hull on Wednesday issued a statement in which he said: "Intervention in the domestic affairs of the Netherlands Indies or any alteration of their status quo by other than peaceful processes would be prejudicial to the cause of stability, peace and security not only in the region of the Netherlands Indies but in the entire Pacific area."

Quite obviously this is the official reply of the Government of the United States to the statement issued at Tokyo on Tuesday, in which it was stated that Japan had "no territorial ambitions" in the Dutch East Indies. If Japan sees in the reply an implication that its denial was not considered altogether conclusive, it will have no ground on which to complain. What Tokyo has said regarding its proceedings in China has not prejudiced the United States with the facts to invest its declarations of policy with one hundred per cent assurance.

Both statements were evoked by the possibility that Germany—whose predatory design Japan has both approved and emulated—may have designs against the Netherlands as it did against Denmark, and if successful may lay claim to the Dutch East Indies as it did to Denmark's insular possessions.

The Japanese statement said merely that its plans would not be interfered with should Germany do this. The statement from Washington is general, and declares that should Holland's East Indian islands be grabbed by any power the peace of the Pacific area would be imperilled. Both Berlin and Tokyo will notice the difference, and interpret the diplomatic language without any difficulty. Canada being one of the countries bordering the Pacific, the people of the Dominion will note with satisfaction that both these aggressors have been told to keep hands off.

Planning Another Raid?

Unless Premier Mussolini has made up his mind to get into Hitler's war or start one of his own, he is wasting a lot of Italian money on fleet manoeuvres, air shows and army demonstrations. Being who he is, time alone will solve the riddle, for the intentions of Benito are not predicated to any degree of definite probability. He is the unknown and unknowable quantity in the European equation.

For what it may be worth, one of his newspapers dropped a possible hint the other day when it said Italy may soon be "compelled" to fight somebody. The only thing that ever "compelled"—or impelled—Mussolini to engage in war was the prospect of getting something out of it. If Duce is first and last a go-getter, and thus far he would only "go" where he thought he saw a chance to "get".

By all the obligations of partnership and of professed political beliefs, Mussolini should have taken his place at the side of Hitler last September. Against the pull of these loyalties he has displayed a masterly restraint. Berlin pretensions that the Fuehrer did not want his help were no more convincing than they were flattering to Duce.

Unless the leopard has changed its spots, which is entirely possible in the case of the present "leopard," the odds rather are that Benito plans to pull another raid on his own account, taking advantage of the general turmoil and the preoccupation of the powers.

Yugoslavia lies just across the Adriatic, and adjoins recently-annexed Albania. It holds the major part of "Italy irredenta." The Slavs are related to the Russians, and have just negotiated a new treaty with the Soviets. Control of Yugoslavia would turn the Adriatic into an Italian lake. That Russia would back the Yugoslavs would cause Mussolini no qualms of conscience because of Russia's affiliation with Germany, none whatever.

Yugoslavia would be well advised to look to its defences, and its alliances.

Thyssen, who financed Hitler when he was poor, and then had to flee for his life from the man he helped to elevate, can understand the predicament of the inventor who built the Frankenstein. Hitler has confiscated his $150,000,000 industrial plants and is using them to produce munitions for the war to which Thyssen was opposed.

A Swedish despatch offers the explanation that German sailors aboard merchant ships anchored in Norwegian harbours donned uniforms as given signals and thus became detachments of the Nazi invading force, flocked ashore and took possession of the ports. Whether correct or not, the explanation fits the fact that the invaders could not possibly have spread along a thousand miles of coast and seized the ports in the 24 hours or so in which they were supposed to have accomplished that feat.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Leaves from a war diary kept by an officer on the German pocket battleship Graf Spee, found at Buenos Aires, discloses that the vessel put to sea with instructions to raid shipping two weeks before the war started. Here are some entries, translated from the German:

Aug. 21. We left Wilhelmshaven for the North Sea.

Aug. 22. The captain assigns duties to the entire crew. We make out the positions of the situation, and also says the DIARY TELLS Fuehrer has assigned us the task of carrying out war on commerce. The Atlantic is the theatre of the war. He cites the cruiser Emden as an example and then tells us our immediate course. Outlining the course between Iceland and the Faroes to reach the Atlantic, the writer tells of a storm on Aug. 26 in which the boat's mate, Matthe, was swept overboard, and was not discovered after a three-hour search. He tells of orders from the Fuehrer on Sept. 8 to start war on commerce, and of receiving oil and provisions in mid-Atlantic from the supply ship Albatross. He tells of how freighters were located by use of the battleship's airplane and sunk by gunfire after provisions were taken from them.

On October 25 the vessel appears to the South American coast to avoid being seen by British warships searching for her. It was off the South American coast seven weeks later she was sighted by the three British light cruisers and sunk.

It was a doubtful honour to a brave man when the Nazis christened their pocket battleship the Admiral Graf von Spee. The episode is recalled in Great Britain's war record. Spee refused to drink after the battle of Coronel when his heavy cruisers, Scharnhorst and Goelewann, with the light cruiser Albatross, were defeated by the British ships.

VON SPEE'S Nürnberg, Admiral Craddock's vessel Monmouth and Admiral Craddock's vessel Monmouth and Admiral Craddock's vessel Monmouth.

Good Hope. The German population of Valparaiso gathered to honour the fallen admiral. Their chairman rose and gave the toast: "To our gallant admiral. May he and his men go to the front of the Fatherland. To the Fatherland. To the Fatherland."

His blue eyes flashing and his pointed beard thrust out defiantly, the German admiral interrupted the speaker to say: "I cannot allow this thrust to be drunk unless the proposer withdraws the insulting reference to the Fatherland."

Admiral Craddock was a gallant gentleman who went down in the face of overwhelming odds. One day only, I may say, he was in a similar position. If that should happen, I trust that I will go to my death with some of the courage that was his.

Prophetic words they proved to be. Von Spee's squadron reached the Falkland Islands a few weeks later to run into Sir John Sturdee's heavy squadron. Before the end of the day the fate of von Spee's squadron remained affixed. The first to go was von Spee's flagship, the Scharnhorst, with all hands on board.

"These flowers will be for my funeral," von Spee had said when presented with a bouquet on board the Scharnhorst. The flowers were placed in his ship into the full fire of the British in the hope that he might thereby help his light cruisers to escape. His spirit will find no joy in the present war against Nazism. Not that he needs fame. On many occasions the unchanging angle of his topper and of his cigar have shewn to all his admirers.

THEY KNEW Churchill, commander of the Bank of England, may travel incognito.

Mr. C. Skinner, but two recent attempts of the First Lord to inspect Britain's north-east industrial area for "Mr. Jones" and "Mr. Johnson" failed him.

During the prohibition period Mr. Churchill visited New York. He was desirous of visiting one of the night club operators.

A young Englishman, Jim Gallagher, who knew his New York, undertook to act as cicerone.

First handicap was a police escort that insisted on "protecting" the distinguished visitor. The proprietor, hearing the siren of the police car and seeing armed men, through his people, thought it was a police raid, and refused to open up.

When Mr. Gallagher explained the situation, the proprietor extended his hand and said "Good evening, Mr. Churchill."

"He's not Mr. Churchill, he's Mr. Brown," explained Gallagher.

"Be gordon, Mr. Brown," murmured the proprietor, and proceeded to escort Mr. Brown to a table.

Hardly had they gone half way down the room when both hands struck up "God Save the King."

This was Mr. Churchill's incognito ploy.

For a series of Pacific War addresses I flew from Los Angeles to St. Louis. Most of the time our plane rode at ten thousand feet. The weather on earth was gray and rainy; but the sun shined on the heaven side of those same clouds, and they were a brilliant expanse of beauty. It was the soaring white of virgin snow hills rising in the distance at times, higher clouds, rays themselves like the snow-covered Himalayas.

It is not always possible to ride above the clouds that darken our days; but it is always possible to know that the heaven side of the clouds is bright. If we have faith, our chances as God sees them all fear and discouragement should disappear.

We thank You, our Father, that Thou hast so much more of our lives and of our lot than we can see. We thank You for Thy guidance and goodness. Amen.

Read it Peter 1:1-11.

Current Comment

A Call to Canada

In 1838 Denmark sent Great Britain 380 million pounds of bacon; 250 million pounds of butter; 40 per cent of all the eggs which the British imported.

With that British source of food supplies cut off, Canada will almost necessarily be called upon to make up the difference. What it may mean is shown by the fact that against the 380 million pounds of bacon which Denmark sent to Britain in 1838, Canada (operating under the Empire trade agreement quotas) sent but 169 million pounds.

What it means, briefly, is that Canadian farmers are now challenged to make a tremendous economic contribution to Allied victory. That they will do so, and vigorously, no one need doubt at all.—Ottawa Journal.

Those Mines

It is something new and extraordinary for Great Britain to seem to become a violator of international law. Respect for law and decency in international relations has always stood as high with the British as the mining of Norwegian territorial waters, though it is only nominally illegal, will remain a notable incident in this war. It is being done to prevent German submarines from evading capture by keeping close to the coast of Norway and within their territorial waters.

Anyone who has regard for the whole situation will say that the Allies are abundantly justified in this action. Nazi Germany has been making international law a mere instrument for furthering her desperate and lawless purposes. It has been to Germany a welcome and inevitable result of her policy of aggression. The Allies might have done to her. The Nazi high command must surely have laughed to themselves at the Allies being so soft and having so much regard for a principle, and they must have wondered how long it would continue, for the advantage to Germany was very great. Had the situation been reversed, Germany would have brought British cargoes of iron ore stealing down the Norwegian coast, not in the second week of the war, but in the first week of the war.

A Madman On a Rampage
When a dog goes mad and runs amok, you can figure out pretty well how he is going to act. He will bite anything or anybody that is in his path. When a mad man goes on a rampage, as Hitler has done in Europe, there is no telling what he will do. So to most of the world, the German invasion of Denmark and Norway was a shocking surprise.

Characteristic of Nazi hypocrisy is the German explanation that their occupation of Denmark and Norway is a "protection" move. They pretend that their purpose is to guard against Allied violations of Danish and Norwegian neutrality and that they acted because the British violated Norwegian neutrality by mining Norwegian waters. But the Germans have penetrated so far into Norway that it appears they may have to retreat in secret before the British mines were laid.

Just as the present war is a continuation of the world war, so the battle of the North Sea to the Scandinavian countries brings to the fore a question which was never settled during the World War. That is the question of the neutrality of the Scandinavian countries. Obviously they were neutral during the World War, as they took no active military part and claimed to be neutral. But actually they were not neutral, for they were the main source of German supplies.

At the present war started, Denmark, Sweden and Norway have been cashing in through their trade with Germany. They have been playing their old role of supplying Germany with iron and other war materials through the Baltic sea frozen. Swedish iron ore shipments have been routed along the Norwegian coast. Typewriter of the British blockade line apparently guided Hitler into the decision to occupy both Norway and Denmark in an effort to open this route.

He must need Scandinavian supplies desperately. In moving into Norway, Hitler may have overreached himself. Not only has he extended his war zone, but if he is to keep his coast route and keep it open he will have to use his fleet, which will give the superior British navy with iron and other war materials through the Baltic sea frozen. Never mind speaking to them—this check will shut them up.

What it means, briefly, is that Canadian farmers are now challenged to make a tremendous economic contribution to Allied victory. That they will do so, and vigorously, no one need doubt at all.—Ottawa Journal.

It is something new and extraordinary for Great Britain to seem to become a violator of international law. Respect for law and decency in international relations has always stood as high with the British as the mining of Norwegian territorial waters, though it is only nominally illegal, will remain a notable incident in this war.

Anyone who has regard for the whole situation will say that the Allies are abundantly justified in this action. Nazi Germany has been making international law a mere instrument for furthering her desperate and lawless purposes.

It has been to Germany a welcome and inevitable result of her policy of aggression. The Allies might have done to her. The Nazi high command must surely have laughed to themselves at the Allies being so soft and having so much regard for a principle, and they must have wondered how long it would continue, for the advantage to Germany was very great.

Had the situation been reversed, Germany would have brought British cargoes of iron ore stealing down the Norwegian coast, not in the second week of the war, but in the first week of the war.

Girls Men Like to Date Are Sure of Elegance

Don't Create Awkward Moments
A dead give-away a girl's manner when she isn't used to dates. If her escort courtially inquires, "Where would you like to go to-night?" she baffled, finally blurts out, "Oh, wherever you say." Of course, she sounds to him as if she weren't interested.

A girl who knows her 's and 's would be ready with a suggestion: "Let's go dancing" or "What about a movie"—with due consideration for her own budget.

And should a man make experienced overtures, the socially experienced girl avoids without hurting his feelings. At a hint of parking for a minute, she tactfully suggests a soda.

Men like girls who are gracious and smooth-mannered, as check your etiquette. Should a girl applaud after a dance? Strictly speaking no, but you may say glowingly, "Want that wonderful?"

Now to invite a new man to your home without seeming to "chase him." Ask other friends, too, have a four-piece.

Show your love to dates and parties. Our 50-page booklet gives etiquette for dances, dates, theatres, hotels, visiting, traveling, entertaining. Discusses petting, office manners.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Etiquette for Young Moderns" to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service, Edmonton, Alberta. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Knees Are Worse Mark Of Age Than Grey Hair

By ALICIA HART

Leading experts are getting around to agreeing that a feeling of tense stiffness in the knees should cause a woman more concern than the first grey hair or the appearance of wrinkles on her face around the eyes.

"Your hair may be quite gray if you may have several lines around the eyes," says one of these experts. "But so long as you sit and rise smoothly and gracefully, and have a spry, youthful walk in terms of age."

TO LOOSEN UP THOSE STIFF JOINTS
"If when you have to lower yourself into a chair by placing your hands on the arms of it, and when your knees lock and are stiff when you walk that are in danger of having people become conscious of your birdy-ism."

THE STRUT KNEE STRETCH: Sit in a straight chair with feet flat on the floor. Bring left knee up to chest, grasping it with both hands and pulling it to chest until heel rests on chair. Now, place hands under bent knee and stretch leg straight up in air from the knee. Be sure to keep back straight. Do not bend backward in an effort to lift leg higher. Reverse, pulling right knee up and then stretching right leg.

THE CHAIR KNEE STRETCH: Stand correctly, resting hands on back of a chair. Raise right leg up in back, bending both knees slightly. Slowly stretch and raise right leg as high as possible, straightening left leg on which you are standing. Repeat six times. Reverse, standing with weight on right leg, lifting and stretching left. Hands should rest lightly on the chair. Essentially, you will be able to do the exercise without placing hands on the chair at all.

The name of this type of hand work came from Holland where it was called "salada" and meant "twisted tightly on quill or ball." The word today was quite loose, the speaker said.

The colors and designs had been influenced by the east which brought materials from the east which were used in the designs.

The first British ship to reach China did so in the reign of Charles I, and it brought back bright Chinese goods which further stimulated admiration for gorgeous colors. Even such women straightened did their best to reproduce with home-made yarn.

But eyes which have structural defects, such as astigmatism, being too short, in far-sighted people, or too long in near-sighted people, can be corrected with the use of proper lenses, which take the strain off the eyes and enable them to see more distinctly. This is very important in this modern age of the eye. Your livelihood and the degree of your ability to see clearly.

No the hair-dresser says, 'I am ready to go ahead and with the she slips shyly into the witness stand and tells her story.'

K. O. CAVALIER

By Jerry Brondfield

CANT OF CHARACTERS
VAL DOUGLAS, KID ABOUT WATER, showed up on a first night at the cinema.

EDDIE CAVALIER, a spite fighter, wanted for the life, has a score to settle with Val.

CAPTAIN STEVE HANSEN, master of the Northern Belle, is a busy man. Kelson, Cavalier's manager.

Yesterday, although toward evening at 8:30, Val is a swell, explains his failure to keep her change the time. Late in the afternoon, a special plane lands. It brings two special writers, determined to get even with Val Douglas.

everything if he wanted to. "Want to watch me work on the bag?" Eddie asked.

"Conky Briggs is in town," Monroe volunteered as Eddie whined away at the bag.

"Yeah," Eddie replied without looking at them.

"Yeah, looks swell, too. It's a tough bag, Eddie. And he can do himself a lot of good by hitting you out."

Eddie stopped and came over to them. "If you give me your word of honor you won't punch him, I'll tell you something."

They nodded.

"I'll knock him out in eight rounds," they whistled softly as he went back to the bag.

A few hours later, Dennis called to Eddie as he passed the radio room. "These reporter guys have run around," he said. "Will you take this message to Miss Douglas for me?"

"Sure," he said. He meant to give it no more than a casual glance but something made him look closer.

Eddie didn't mean to be nosy but somebody named Rother said he would be waiting for Val in San Francisco, and he had signed it with "Tom."

Other Frontiers In Glare Of War's Lightning

Peace Efforts Failed

THE NERVOUS NETHERLANDS

Like warning fingers pointed at a potential invader are the barrels of modern field guns like these, with which the Dutch-German frontier is ringed. Fearful lest lightning war flash its next bolts into Holland, the Dutch army strengthened the already well-guarded border.

THE VERY BLUE DANUBE

Signing of Danube River pilots to two-year contracts not to work, was a reported British coup in the economic war. Hundreds of pilots of barges and tug, like those above, plied at Galatz, Rumania, would cripple transport along Germany's chief inland supply route.

BELGIUM—Hopefully Neutral, But—

Although fearful of a German drive through the Low Countries, Belgium received a British suggestion that she accept Allied "protection" and like these Belgian machine gunners, her valiant army is on the alert for any violation of neutrality.

BESSARABIA—Tinder-box of Balkans?

Peaceful is this scene in Rumania's Bessarabian province, but fearful were the war rumors that spread through the country following reports of large Soviet troop concentrations near Odessa, only 25 miles from Bessarabia's border. Russia has never relinquished its claim to the territory.

The desperate efforts of this trio of monarchs to keep their countries from becoming involved in the war between Germany and the Allies failed as Germany invaded Denmark and launched a lightning attack on Norway. Unconfirmed reports also stated that German troops had landed on Swedish soil. The monarchs of the ill-fated Scandinavian countries are pictured left to right: King Christian of Denmark, King Haakon, of Norway and King Gustaf, of Sweden.

Called To Defence

Behind a defence line north of Oslo, the Norwegian government rallied the country to resistance against a German army of occupation and looted treasure in the interior. Norwegian troops are shown at a military telephone exchange during recent winter manoeuvres.

Royal Houses Of Norway And Denmark Fall Victims To Nazi Aggression

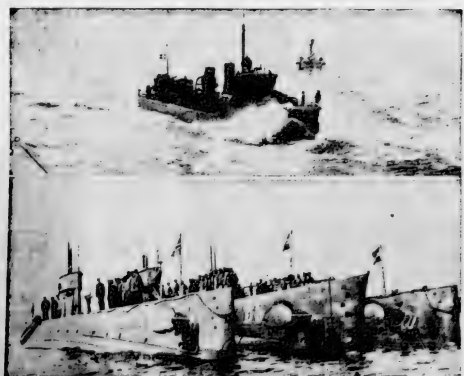

Striking with stunning suddenness, Chancellor Hitler unleashed his Nazi legions to end the struggle being piling by the royal houses of Norway, Sweden and Denmark to maintain their neutrality in the present European conflict. King Haakon, of Norway, left, joined, with his cabinet ministers, that the only course open to Norway was to resist the Nazi invasion with all their might. King Christian of Denmark, right, however, capitulated to the Nazi invaders and allowed them to govern his country without a struggle.

Weak Opponents For Nazi Sea Might

Doomed to ineffectiveness against the might of Germany are the tiny navies of Norway and Denmark. Torpedo boats of the Danish navy are shown, top, while three of Norway's small fleet of submarines are shown, bottom. Never seriously considered as opposition to any major naval power, these craft were built for coastal patrol work in an effort to preserve the neutrality of the tiny Scandinavian countries.

Crown Of Denmark Tottering Under Nazi Invasion

The future of this royal family of Denmark is a matter of considerable conjecture now that the Nazi steamroller has crushed all resistance in the country of Denmark. German soldiers occupy Copenhagen, and the Danish crown is obviously tottering. This picture was made a short time ago when war clouds were just gathering in the distant horizon. It was the king's 40th wedding anniversary. Left to right, Princess Caroline Mathilde, Crown Princess Ingrid, Crown Prince Frederick, little Princess Elisabeth, Prince Valdemar and King Christian. Queen Alexandra is holding little Elisabeth's hand.

Fly To Fame—'Blind'

With only the fluorescent dials on the instrument panel to guide them, U. S. Army fliers commanded by Major C. J. McDaniel, recently guided a 224-ton bomber 300 miles from Mitchell Field, L. I., to Langley Field, Va., in aviation's first "blind" flight. Above, Corp. Robert Huard (left) and Sergeant Horace T. Peck check instruments.

Here's Mud In Your Eye

Wounded when one of these Slingshot tanks hits, she hits. Above, the blind soldier, however, the flier, at a glance through a muddy pipe during maneuvers at Camp Udon, Cal.

Glamorous Kid McCoy Of Fistian Fame Dies

By DALE STAFFORD

DETROIT, April 19.—In the quiet of an hotel room a peaceful death came Thursday to Norman Shelby, the glamorous kid McCoy of the boxing ring whose amazing life story would have been labeled fantastic fiction if his chapters had been woven into a novel.

McCoy, who did more and saw more in his 36 years than the average man does to dream about died from an overdose of sleeping medicine on poison, according to Dr. Lyle C. Ling, deputy coroner.

A THRILLING LIFE
Hobo and millionaire apartment dweller and social lion; claimant of the world's midwestern title and convict owner of an exclusive New York jewelry store and bankrupt movie actor and clown; porter, auto racer and con artist; the life and mystic being of a short story poet by Richard Harding Davis and dramatist of a new-fangled health suspension—these descriptions all fitted the kid, who was married nine times. Three times to the same woman.

One note left by McCoy said: "I can no longer endure this world's madness."

Another note—He probably would have called it the "real McCoy"—said:

"To all my friends I wish the best of luck."

McCoy spent his last years in Detroit as a motor company guard, claiming the job when he was awarded from Sam Quinlan prize where he earned a term for homicide in connection with the death of Mrs. Theresa M. of Los Angeles.

DENIED HIS GUILT

He always denied his guilt, saying the woman killed herself in his presence.

He claimed the world's midwestern title in 1936 following Tommy Ryan, the champion. During his career he won 70 bouts, 12 of which were knockouts. Tim Corbett and Tom Sharkey, drew nine times and ended in 15 no-decision fights.

He was born in Moscow, Ind. He directed all his possessions be left to his widow, Susan.

Memorial, Allan Cup Pals Devils' Big Power

By DICK SHERIDAN

TORONTO, April 19.—For the first time in history Kirkland Lake has a team in the Allan cup finals this year but for two of the Blue Devils playing for hockey championships is old stuff. When the eastern Canada champions met Calgary Stampede here Saturday night in the series' opener Dick Kovalek and Johnny McCreey will be shooting for their fourth major title in four years.

Budget on the Winnipeg Manitoba Memorial Cup winners of 1937, Kovalek and McCreey have stuck together since. They belated Trail Smoke Eaters won the Allan cup in 1938 and the world's championship in an American tournament.

First Break Up
The two have worked as wing-men on the same line until this year. Since joining Kirkland Lake Kovalek has been shifted to centre.

Neither lost his effectiveness despite the separation and both played a big part in adding Montreal Royals three straight in the eastern Canada finals. McCreey got all three goals when Blue Devils won the first game 3-1. And he scored in each of the other two games which went to the northwestern, 3-1 and 6-4.

Kovalek picked up a goal in the second game and a goal in the third game. The two players have stuck together since they met in the first game of the series.

FACTORY GIRLS KNOCKED OUT IN ROYAL VISIT

By DICK SHERIDAN

REIMINGHAM, Eng., April 19.—Several factory girls were knocked down and slightly injured as thousands of women munition workers surged around the King and Queen when their Majesties inspected munitions works yesterday.

Royal etiquette was flouted as the women gave a tumultuous welcome to their Majesties. Officials anxiously hovering in the back, round were swept away in the throng and cut off from the Royal party.

At a second factory, the King and Queen were welcomed by the motor maintenance and engineering staffs. Lord Nuffield, and strolled through the shops chatting with workmen.

To "Royal-oid W. G. Brant, 60 years a gunsmith, the King and Queen looked very happy and hearty. "He looked very good and hearty," he said. "He looked very good and hearty," he said.

"How do you like your job?" "Very much, thank you," George replied shyly, keeping his eyes on his machine.

SOCCER CLUBS OPEN WAR CUP COMPETITION

By DICK SHERIDAN

LONDON, April 19.—English soccer clubs go into first-round games in the football league's war competition tomorrow. The prospect of bigger crowds than at any time since the war started. Throughout the country the home office announcement that anti-crowding restrictions would be lightened was hailed with enthusiasm.

SIXTY-TWO TEAMS
Sixty-two teams battle for the war-cup trophy and attendance will be limited to 50 per cent of the existing accommodation. This represents a real step towards big crowds. In the case of big clubs, gates of approximately 30,000 will be allowed.

First and second division teams are into the first round with the exception of the preliminary round played a week ago. The preliminary round was played on a Saturday night.

London and Middlesbrough are in the south "A" division. Rangers and Dundee are in the north "A" division.
